The Fallen Shadow: The Fallen Kingdom Series - Part 1 Jason Kaplan

In the world of Jenogot, a great darkness as returned to bringing back to the darkness it once knew. At the center of it is Jasper a well known general that defended Forta in its finally hours against King Tartirius. In the end, Jasper lost Forta and left his home. He found a beautiful wife and gave birth to two sons. He moved to Seefa a small town where he would have thought he would spend the rest of his life as a farmer. Tartirius is a king with many names but is well known for taken over most of the Indica continent the biggest and most greenish plains then ever. The other continents are the Isles of Sand where the elves live, but they have been exiled from their home in Indica in the Atasil woods. The elves but had a civil war one-half stayed in the Atasil woods the others traveled to the Isle of Sands. Then there is where the dark orcs live the B Mountain plain these orcs have pledged their allegiance to Jarin the Fallen Shadow along with the goblins that plague Jenogot as well as some cultists. However, not all orcs are bad for some scattered all other the Jenogot region, mostly after the elves took the Isles of Sands from them. Then there are the dwarfs most live on the Talvon plain, A flat bed of stone where some mountains rest. The dwarfs live in the ground itself with their city of bronze. There is also the Lagor human but are considered to be angels with their magnificent wings. People say they were the first race created by Seldor the god that created Jenogot before his death. When the other races came to birth in the second era, they fought the Lagor for Indica, they felt betrayed by the kin of Seldor, Elsia, Jarin, and Salana. They fled to the continent of Foneth. With their magic, they made a dome of Clouds. No one has seen them since. A great darkness has come once again this world be submerged in the darkness of what is to come or will there be a light at the end of the world.
